ROME (R) — Italian Agriculture Minister Gianni Fontana Sunday resigned from the government after being targeted by a corruption probe. His spokesman told the ANSA news agency that the minister had "already taken the steps to put his mandate back in the hands of (Prime Minister Giuliano) Amato." The corruption scandal tearing through the Italian establishment forced three senior ministers to resign last month. ANSA reported earlier the minister had been notified he faced investigation over allegations of breaking the law on party financing and illegally receiving funds. Mr. Fontana said he wanted "to be able to clarify his position in front of the magistrature at the earlier possible moment." I have always tried to base my political actions on transparency and clarity. Italy has been shaken over the past year by a corruption scandal based on allegations politicians systematically demanded kickbacks in return for the award of public works contracts.

Russian envoy meets with Syrian officials

DAMASCUS (AP) - A senior Russian official met with Foreign Minister Farouk Al Sharaa for talks on the Middle East peace process Saturday. The Syrian Arab News Agency (SANA) said Victor Bogo Valiuk, head of the Africa and Middle East Department in the Russian Foreign Ministry, discussed the issue of the same of the sa the nearly 400 Palestinians expelled by Israel. Diplomatic sources said the Russian diplomat, who was expected also to visit Jordan and Israel, would likely use his country's good offices as a co-sponsor of the Arab-Israeli peace talks to try to work out a solution to the crisis over the expellees.

DUBAI (AP) - The police chief Sunday denied that two Indian brothers sought in connection with a spate of bombings in Bombay had fled to Saudi Arabia. Brigadier Dhahi Khaflan reiterated in an interview that the men, identified by the Indian police as Yacub and Ismail Memon, flew to Dubai around the time of the March 12 bombings. But they later left for a "neighbouring" country, he said. He refused to specify their destination, but insisted: "They did not fly to Saudi

Firing disrupts calm in Kurdish spring

CIZRE, Turkey (AP) - Police fired over the heads of singing demonstrators Sunday and used armoured cars to disperse crowds celebrating the Kurdish spring festival of Nowruz in this town that was the scene of a bloodbath last year. State television said one demonstrator was killed in the southern city of Adana when police clashed with stonethrowing demonstrators who refused to disperse. The Anatolia news agency said seven people were also slightly injured in the same clash. It quoted police chief veral years and we were detained. Police also detained 60 Nowruz demonstrators in the eastern Agri province after the demonstration became a separatist rally, the agency said. (see related story on page 2).

Muslims stage rally in Jersey City

JERSEY CITY (AP) — Hundreds of Muslims rallied outside a mosque Saturday to protest what they called false accusations of terrorism against Islam since the World Trade Centre bombing. Several leaders of the Islamic community from New Jersey and New York addressed the outdoor rally in a parking lot. "Islam is not a religion of terrorism. It is the religion of peace," said Imam Amin Awad, leader of a Brooklyn-based mosque. Speakers at the rally accused news media of distorting reports about Islam and the involvement in the bombing of people who prayed at the mosque. "The media is not representing America," Imam Awad said. "It is representing some kind of special people in America and it is representing their special interests." The crowd mounted several chants, including "Islam is peace. God is great. Islam is justice."

Egypt has no record on new suspect in U.S. blast ags cocker*

CAIRO (R) — An Interior Ministry official said Sunday Egypt had no record of Egyptian-born Mahmud Abu Halima, named in New York as a suspect in the World Trade Centre bombing. "We did not find any record of a man with such a name in our files," Interior Ministry official Brigadier Galal Al Shami told Reuters, binting the man might have been using a forged passport. Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) spokesman James Lamb said on Saturday Abu Halima, a former New York taxi driver. was among the main suspects in the agency's investigation of the Feb. 26 bombing. An FBI source said Abu Halima apparently left the United States with his German wife and four children, two days after the March 4 arrest of Mohammad Salameh as a suspect in last month's bombing. Congress moves to impeach president; public rallies held in support and against Yeltsin, who gets world endorsement

MOSCOW (Agencies) - Rus- the report could not be imsia's hardline legislature took the first step towards impeaching President Boris Yeltsin Sunday as a way of thwarting his attempt to rule by decree. The Russian Supreme Soviet, meeting in emergency session, voted 125-16 to ask Russia's constitutional court to review Mr. Yeltsin's declaration of emergen-

If the court finds that Mr. Yeltsin violated the constitution, he could be impeached by the full parliament, the Congress of People's Deputies, which may be convened as early as Wednesday.

Mr. Yeltsin declared emergency rule Saturday and said he would hold a referendum on who should govern the country, the president or the hardline legislature made up largely of commun-

He scheduled the referendum for April 25 and said emergency rule would be in effect until then. The Supreme Soviet's resolution also asked Russia's chief prosecutor to consider whether any of Mr. Yeltsin's advisers bear criminal responsibility for the declaration of emergency rule.

That amounts to a threat to put the president's top aides though not Mr. Yeltsin himself on trial. Mr. Yeltsin did not attend the legislature's session, possibly because of a death in the family. Economics Minister Andrei Nechayev told reporters that Mr. Yeltsin's mother had died, but mediately confirmed.

The Supreme Soviet's vote followed a blistering denunication of Mr. Yeltsin by his chief political rival, Parliament Speaker Ruslan Khasbulatov, who accused the president of trying to usurp power and leading the nation toward civil war.

If the congress impeaches Mr. Yeltsin, the result may be only a stalemate. The president's chief legal adviser, Sergei Shakhrai, has said Mr. Yeltsin would refuse to step down.

No violence was reported. As night fell, some of the demonstrators lit bonfires and prepared for an all-night vigil, the first since Mr. Yeltsin's supporters flocked to the building to oppose the Aug. 1991 hardline coup.

In opening the legislative session, Mr. Khasbulatov said: "Pushed by his inner circle, the president has chosen the path of direct, tough confrontation with legislative and judicial bodies - the path of extreme measures, which put him outside of the constitutional framework." "It's an attempt to establish arbitrary rule," Mr. Khasbulatov

Mr. Yeltsin told the nation during a television address Saturday that the parliament was trying to restore the old communist "nomenklatura" to power.

AMMAN — Minister of Energy and Mineral Resources Ali Abul Ragheb Sunday announced the discovery of a new gas field in the Al Risheh region in the northeast, 50 kilometres from fields which are already producing gas.

Mr. Abul Ragheb also said that the Ministry of Energy and Mineral Resources will launch explorations for oil in the Dead Sea region at a depth of 1,000 metres since indications were that the area contains oil. The work will start immediately after the 'Eid holidays, he told the Jordan Times and Al Ra'i. Results of preliminary explorations for gas in the Al Risheh have shown that the new-found field could produce gas on a commercial level, the minister said, adding that the expected output was more than the current gas production at Al Risheh fields. The gas produced from the new field will be used to generate power as well as for industrial CAIRO (R) — Egypt has decided to try Muslim militant preacher Sheikh Omar Abdul Rahman in his absence for inciting anti-government violence, judicial sources said Sunday.

The preacher's lawyer Adel Aymouni confirmed the report. He told Reuters a case brought against Sheikh Abdul Rahman and 49 alleged militants, in which all were found innocent, would be re-heard in a state security court in April. Earlier Sunday, police at Cairo airport prevented a wife and four children of Sheikh Abdul Rahman from leaving the country Sunday, security sources said. Followers of Sheikh Rahman, who was tried but acquitted of blessing the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in 1981, have been under intense pressure in both the United States and Egypt this month.

Two alleged followers have been arrested in connection with the bombing of the World Trade Centre in New York and Egyptian security forces have taken the offensive with a new ruthlessness against militants fighting to overthrow the government in Cairo.

The sources said the younger of Sheikh Abdul Rahman's two wives in Egypt, Faten, and four of her children tried to board an Egypt Air flight to Jeddah saying they were going to Saudi Arabia for a pilgrimage to Mecca. Immigration officers were ordered to prevent them leaving because it was feared they could be going to join Sheikh Abdul Rahman in the United States, the sources added. Sheikh Abdul Rahman has lived in self-imposed exile in New Jersey since 1991.

A re trial was possible in the case because President Hosni Mubarak cancelled the original verdict, the judicial sources said.

Palestinians say evictee crisis solvable, Israeli commitments more important By Maria . M. Shahin "The issue of a phased return is from the occupied territories."

Palestinian sources say that Israel needs to commit itself to a U.N. Resolutions 242 and 338. We need to hear that the occupied territories are occupied and not 'disputed'," Mr. Aruri said.

"At this point we want two things to continue the talks; the first is a clear adherence to a withdrawal of lands occupied in the 1967 war territories that the leadership in and the second is a commitment not to deport any more people

PLO officials confirmed to the Jordan Times that Syria, Egypt and Morocco were involved in efforts to convince the Israeli government of the need for such commitments.

PLO officials say that the quick Palestinian rejection of the U.S.-Russian invitation to round nine of the talks was a sign that "the Palestinians will not be taken for granted."

Israelis kill 2 in Gaza as cycle of violence continues

- Israeli troops shot dead four Palestinians and Palestinians killed two Israeli soldiers in separate ambushes in the Israeli-occupied territories over the weekend. Palestinians said troops shot dead two of the Palestinians, aged 12 and 24, early Sunday in Khan Younis town in the occupied Gaza Strip after Arabs fired at an army observation post, lightly wounding a soldier in an

The army confirmed the soldier's injury but said it was checking on the reported deaths. Palestinians identified the dead as Ali Abu Younis, 24, and Salam Shurrab, 12.

Saturday's ambushes were the deadliest attacks on Israeli troops since the Islamic Resistance Movement Hamas killed three soldiers on Dec. 7, prompting Isreal to expel 415 alleged Muslim activists to Lebanon.

The Qassem military wing of Hamas said three of its men ambushed an army patrol in the . Gaza Strip Saturday morning. The army said Sergeant Yoosi Shabtai, 21, was shot dead in the attack in Jabalya refugee camp.

Iraq slams U.S. report on 'war crimes'

BAGHDAD (Agencies) — Iraq said Sunday a U.S. government report listing what Washington called substantiated Iraqi "war crimes" in Kuwait was full of lies and fabrications.

Al Thawra, the newspaper of the ruling Baath Party, described the report released on Friday as an attempt by the United States to fabricate evidence against Iraq as the time approached to review an international trade embargo against it.

The U.N. Security Council will conduct its periodic review of the sanctions on March 29.

The report is full of distortion and falsehood," Al Thawra said. Iraq invaded Kuwait in August 1990 and was driven out by a U.S.-led multinational force seven months later.

CIZRE. Turkey (Agency) — Turkish Kurds, heeding a cease-fire call by guerrilla leader Abdullah Ócalan, celebrated their Nowrouz spring festival in low-key style Sunday.

Tanks, armoured cars and sharpshooters moved overnight into the middle of this southeastern town, scene of the worst of last year's Nowrouz violence which killed about 100 people. Groups of townspeople gathered to dance around bonfires in rain-drenched backstreets, but youngsters who began shouting nationalist slogans were swiftly hushed by their elders. "We don't want blood to be spilt," Cizre Mayor Hasim Hasimi told reporters. "People are entitled to reap the fruits of the ceasefire. This is a new era."

Mr. Ocalan, head of the Marxist Kurdishan Labour Party (PKK), declared Wednesday that he was ordering a unilateral 26day ceasefire in the independence war he has fought since 1984. He also renounced the quest for a separate Kurdish state in the immediate future and said he wanted to embark on a peaceful political struggle. He said his struggle. He guerrillas would fire only if attacked, but did not say they would lay down their guns.

Defendants in Egyptian trial repudiate video evidence

CAIRO (AP) - Suspected Mushim militants charged with attacking tourists in Egypt repudiated in court Saturday a videtaped proclamation that their leader is a blind Egyptian cleric allegedly linked with suspects in the bombing of New York's World Trade

They also denied that they attacked tourists, a charge that a colleague alterted as videocameras whirred at a previous court session.

"Omar Abdul Rahman is only a religious guide and a spiritual leader for many factions of the second court session for 43 men facing charges that could on conviction condemn many of them to hang.

As for the charge against them, the speaker said: "We are not responsible for the operations against tourism. We are behind bars, and some of us have been in prison for the last two years."

As Saturday's trial convened, a police spokesman in the troubled southern city of Assiut said a suspected extremist was shot dead in his hideout after he fired on raiding police. The spokesman also announced the arrest of 50 suspects in a continuing antiextremist sweep.

Mostly bearded and wearing white robes favoured by Islamic fundamentalists in Egypt, the defendants clustered around the speaker so reporters could not see him as he voiced complaints from inside the defendants' cage.

After the speaker denied that Al Gamaa Al Islamyia (Islamic Group) was responsible for attacks on tourists since last autumn, the military prosecutor in-install an Iranian-style Islamic theocracy in Egypt.

Gen. Leithy, the senior military judge hearing the case in a converted theatre on an armed forces base in the desert outside Cairo, asked each defendant in turn whether he had committed the crimes of which he was accused. The defendants, being held in metal cages along the side of the courtroom, all denied the charges and some interrupted the proceedings to renew allegations that

All denied any knowledge of tamont to accepting the tapes as the materials except for some of the books, which defendants said could be bought anywhere.

One of the men in court had been arrested only Friday. He protested he was being held in error and his name simply resembled that of someone listed in the charge sheet as on the run. The government began to refer all serious militant cases to military courts last November because civilian judges have proved slow in reaching verdicts and in some cases appear to have been sympathetic to or intimidated by the militants. The first military trials of 46 militants ended after little more than a month with eight death sentences.

Arafat urges protection for Palestinians

TUNIS (AP) — Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) Chairman Yasser Arafat expressed hopes Saturday that Palestinian participation in peace talks could be resolved before the scheduled. opening of the new round of talks April 20 in Washington.

Mr. Arafat also called for "urgent" action by the international community to assure the protec-tion of Palestinians in the Israelioccupied territories, saying they were being subjected to "a veritable butchery."

He said he would soon go to Cairo for a visit with President Hosni Mubarak, who is himself planning a tour of European countries and a visit to the United States, apparently to discuss the peace process.

"We want to go to Washington. We don't practice rupture for the sake of rupture," Mr. Arafat said at a news conference at his residence.

But he said there could be no Palestinian participation in the peace process as long as the issue of Israeli-exiled Palestinians remains unresolved and as long as discussions over the status of Jerusalem "do not figure high in the negotiating calendar."

"I hope this question will be resolved before April 20." Mr.

Arafat said.

Arab states taking part in the peace process are to meet march 20 in Damascus. "We are deploying all our efforts so that the Arab position is homogenous and unified." said Mr. Arafat.

The PLO has no direct role in the peace process, but the Palestinian delegation takes its cues from Tunis, PLO headquarters. Referring to the new wave of unrest in the occupied territories, Mr. Arafat called for urgent international protection.

"I ask the United States and Russia to take a practical and frank position to stop this massacre," he said. He said Israeli soldiers in the Gaza Strip received orders Friday to "shoot Palestinians without hesitation." Soldiers and Israeli civilians paye killed, 12 Palestinians this month in the occupied territories, mostly during riots and stone-throwing incidents. At least seven Israelis have been killed in the same time.

The four latest Palestinian vicntire were all from the Khan Yunis refugee camp, a shantytown of 43.0000 population in the occupied Gazah

Maher Naim Al Majayda, 10, was cut down by army gunfire Saturday when crowds of stonethrowing Palestinians tried to chase Israeli troops who set up a lookout post in the camp. He was hit in the chest. His family took his body from Nasser Hospital in Khan Yunis town to bury it before sundown before Israeli soldiers could remove it for an autopsy.

Taleb Fares Al Hamane, 16, was hit in the leg and bled to death during the same clash. He survived long enough to reach Nasser Hospital, but doctors there could not deal with the severity of his wound. He died while being transferred to a hospital in Gaza City.

Ali Abu Younis, 23, was shot and killed by soldiers as they responded to assailants who shot and slightly wounded a reserve soldier Sunday.

Salam Sharab, 10, was walking to school in the Khan Yunis refugee camp he got caught in the crossfire in the Sunday clash. His father, Farhan, is a construction worker in Israel. He left three siblings.

Libyan minister ends visit to Jordan

AMMAN (Petra) — Libya's Foreign Minister Omar Al Muntasser Sunday left Amman at the end of a two-day official visit to Jordan during which he held talks with senior Jordanian officials on Arab. regional and international issues of common interest. Mr. Muntassser also discussed bilateral relations and means of enhancing them, particularly in the economic field. Prime Minister Sharif Zeid Ben Shaker Saturday received Mr. Muntasser and discussed with him Libya's dispute with Western countries over the bombing of an American airliner over Lockerbie, Scotland in 1988 as well as Jordanian-Libyan cooperation in the economic arena. Following the meeting, which was attended by Foreign Minister Kamel Abu Jaber, Libya's ambassador to Jordan and the Jordanian ambassador to Libya, Mr. Muntasser told the Jordan News Agency, Petra, that his discussions with Sharif Zeid dealt with issues of common concern to both countries as well as regional developments. A Jerusalem Media and Communications Centre opinion poll which was published in February indicated that 83 per cent of the people in the occupied territories believe that the negotiating team should not return to the peace talks until the expellee issue is addressed.

Both support for and expectations of the peace talks have declined considerably since the peace process began in October of 1991, PLO officials monitoring the disappointment that the peo-

The public opinion poll conducted by the Jerusalem Media and Communications Centre indicates that only 60 per cent of the Palestinians in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank believe the Palestinian delegation to the peace talks should return "after the expellees have returned." Only 13 per cent said they thought negotiations was the appropriate method for solving the Palestinian problem. Both the PLO leadership and that of the Islamic Resistance movement Hamas question the results of the recent poll. But they admit that support for Palestinian participation in the talks is waning.

"We are at a low point right now," said the senior Arafat advisor from Tunis. "But despite ple feel about the lack of progress thus far we cannot and must not quit the negotiations."

Mr. Aruri said in Amman: People have seen no results. On the contrary they are seeing harsher policies being practiced by the Israelis since the 'peaceful' Rabin government took over."

While opponents of the peace talks, namely the group of 10 Palestinian parties most of whom are based on Damascus, say that the Palestinians should pull out of the talks, Palestinian analysts warn of grave consequences.

"If we give up and pull out, the Israelis will have their way and start building settlements on the West Bank again at full scale. By the time they are finished the West Bank will look like the Galilee triangle and we won't be able to negotiate over even the smallest piece of land," warned Arafat's advisor.

Shipping agents welcome European group's decision to maintain regular service to Aqaba

Staff Reporter

AMMAN — The Jordanian Shipping Agents Association (JSAA) Sunday welcomed the decision by a French-based consortium to. maintain its regular shipping lines to Agaba despite the withdrawal of one of its member companies.

Tawfiq Kawar, president of the association, noted that the move by Marseilles-based Red Sea Express (RSE) to charter a new ship and continue its regular service to Aqaba comes at a time when many other shipping companies are reluctant to send their vessels to the Red Sea port in view of the difficulties posed by the requirements laid down by the enforcers of the international sanctions

"The Red Sea Express offers newly-built ship, Hansa Berlin, to the main container service to replace "General Delgado," Aqaba as opposed to other companies which discharge their containers at Jeddah for (transhipment) to Aqaba," Mr. Kawar

The JSAA' president noted that Red Sea Express was the only international shipowner to contime regular sailings to Aqaba throughout the Gulf crisis, despite the difficulties brought on by the imposition of sanctions against Iraq and overzealous enforcement of the embargo.

The Red Sea Express consortium, which will comprise the CMA, DSR and CAMEL companies after the withdrawal of Merzario Marittima with effect from March 31, has chartered a

"We firmly believe that customers demand a fully-dedicated, regular liner service, providing direct calls to Aqaba, Hodeidah, Port Sudan and Jeddah ... for shippers to know their cargo will arrive at destination of the vessel it was actually loaded on in Europe," said a press release from the consortium.

"RSE is the only line serving the full range of the main Red basis," it said.

The release said the service would have an improved efficiency — with sailings every 11 days from Thamesport, Rotterdam. Antewerp, Hamburg and Le

"RSE reaffirms its dedication and leader position in this trade, challenging the many indirect lines who have taken a sudden transhipment interest in some of the Red Sea ports."

It was an indirect reference to the shipping lines which, Mr. Kawar said, now resort to a "feedering service" from Jeddah.

Under this arrangement, which, according to Mr. Kawar, adversely affects the prominence of Aqaba, small container ships onerate a shuttle service betwee the Saudi port and Aqaba.

The service allows the intern: tional shipping lines to avoid th delays and problems posed by the prerequisites laid down by that U.S.-led enforcers of the sand tions against Iraq, but costs th Jordanian importer highe

"It is a welcome move by RSn to maintain their services to Aqaba and we appreciate it veri much," said Mr. Kawar.

Beyond the immediate conte:s of continued services, the RSn decision is seen indicative of th consortium's continued confin dence in Agaba's role and thprominence it would regain in and when the sanctions againn Iraq are lifted.

Morillon, the example

AMONG THE thousands of Western generals, one, Philippe viorillon, stands tall. His achievement demonstrates a hope hat the military in the West were not all trained and rganised to fight liberation movements in the Third or second worlds or abet repressive and tyrannical regimes in

Gen. Morillon last week led a U.N. convoy with food and nedicine to the Bosnian town of Srebrenica, besieged and onstantly bombarded by Serbian forces. After delivering he aid to the town the general evacuated the wounded from he town to another town, Tuzla, only to be greeted on urrival by a barrage of 120 mm shelling from the Serbs.

That Bosnian towns and villages are being systematically lestroyed, and Bosnian women raped, seems to invoke little eaction from the West beyond American "daring" airirop of blankets and canned food for a people whose plight extends beyond food to basic survival under the hail of serbian bombardment. The word "shame" - if shame still neans anything in certain quarters in the West --- seems to e an understatement in describing the complacent attitude of some countries.

While Washington and London lead the campaign that ripples Iraq and its people and while they contemplate ntervention in less explosive areas in the world, say south Sudan, they practically turn a blind eye on the slaughter of a vhole ethnic minority in former Yugoslavia.

Why the West, especially the more able countries in it, is o indifferent, at least in deed, to the plight of the Muslim Bosnians, nobody knows. From our own point of view we an only see that this attitude will only aggravate Muslim eelings towards the West and will certainly lead to a leepening of the already existing divide between our peoples

When President Bill Clinton took over from President Bush earlier this year, he was reported to have summoned is generals with the intention of assuming greater U.S. role n wretched Yugoslavia. But confronted with the "facts" about the "cost" of direct intervention, the president seems o have held back on his campaign promises. Alas, one more iberal, and supposedly chief advocate and champion of numan rights in the world, chose to do nothing substantial or the miserable Bosnian Muslims.

Generals in Western Europe, at NATO headquarters and n the vast lands of the U.S., who for decades readied hemselves for the "Soviet threat" appear today incapable of dealing with a much less menacing threat. Is not cowardice the greatest of sins? Or is just the continued flow

Gen. Morillon truly deserves His Majesty's medal and nore, not only for his personal courage but also because he s setting an example to follow in international relations.

ARABIC PRESS COMMENTARIES

A COLUMNIST in Al Ra'i Arabic daily Sunday strongly ttacked the United States for trying to extend sanctions on the raqi people. The Clinton administration is not satisfied with nerely delaying a discussion on the question of the sanctions until ne end of this month, but also has been issuing false reports bout alleged Iraqi atrocities during the brief occupation of Luwait, said Tareq Masarweb. Citing the testimony of the Luwaiti ambassador's daughter to the United States as an xample of false allegations, the writer said that the United States trying hard to blackmail the Security Council members and afluencing their decisions out of hatred of the Iraqi leadership nd people and to extend the present sanctions that are causing ntold sufferings to the innocent population. Referring to reports y the Red Cross and other organisations, which had stated that tore than 2 million people in the north and south of Iraq are acing real starvation and are in desperate need of medical ttention, the writer said that the reports alone should prompt the ecurity Council to end the unjust sanctions. He said it is the americans who committed atrocities against the Iraqis and the ietnamese people and ought to face trial for their crimes and not ne innocent Iraqi people. Punishment should be dealt to the americans who dropped unspecified quantities of uranium dust nto the Iraqi soil, harming an entire population and not to the ictims of such crime, the writer said. The Arab countries, for neir part, the writer continued, should realise that it is illogical nd unreasonable for anyone of them to maintain a siege of any ther Arab country, and a victim of American plots which should nd through the efforts of sincere Arab leaders who believe in the an-Arab legitimacy and not in the Western style, U.S.-rchestrated legitimacy.

columnist in Al Dustour urged the Arab countries to end their tempt to appease the Western countries at the expense of ational interests. The time has come for the Arabs to turn their ttention to solidarity, having realised that the U.N. Security ouncil resolutions are not implemented fairly, said Taher Al dwan. The Arab countries involved in settling Libya's dispute ith London, Washington and Paris ought to realise that it is etter for them to protect Libya and Arab interests rather than try o please the Western countries which are allied against Arab nterests, said the writer. He said working together, the Arab tates can achieve something positive to protect their national nerest. It was the so-called understanding between Cairo and Damascus that provided the cover for the U.S.-led coalition's ggression on Iraq paved the ground for the peace process upon The U.S. initiative and has influenced and directed the ongoing alks concerning the Lockerbie affair, said the writer. But, he aid. the Arab states have so far failed to achieve anything as a ssult of this Cairo-Damascus understanding and, what is more, nere are indications now that the Cairo-Damascus alliance is reakening as the two sides do not see eye to eye with regard to a umber of issues. The writer claimed that while Damascus naintains strong ties with Iran, Egypt is involved in fighting off ne Iranian-backed Islamists and while Damascus rejects the idea f separate peace treaty with Israel, Egypt is known trying to rediate between Tel Aviv and Damascus for such objective. He aid that under the circumstances, and in view of the fact that only ne Arabs can handle their own affairs and protect their national iterests. Arab leaders ought to stop all attempts to please the Vest and should take the matter into their own hands, giving due ttention to Arab national interests.

WEEKLY POLITICAL PULSE

Jordan's inadequate policies

JORDAN APPEARS to be "flying low and safe" on several key regional and international issues on the premise that a low profile is considerably more sane and secure than a high profile in these trying times. This posture has increasingly characterised the country's policies ever since the outbreak of Gulf crisis when the Kingdom found itself isolated by countries and regions where international clout counts most. The country's relations with traditional friends and allies immediately suffered thereafter and became strained. This is not to dispute the validity of the country's position vis-a-vis the Gulf conflict that erupted on the heels of Iraq's invasion and occupation of Kuwait in 1990. In terms of merits, Jordan's stance on the conflict is still basically right albeit much misunderstood even by the country's closest allies and supporters. In the past Gulf crisis era, democracy and the democratic process in the Kingdom preempted traditional objectives and became the focus of the government's policy in both the national and international arenas. In so doing, Amman's bot pursuit of pluralistic democracy per se suggests that that noble goal is all that counts in the conditions that prevail in the wake of the collapse of the Communist order worldwide and the advent of

The question that remains is whether this seemingly deliberate and strategic decision to fly low is indeed safe in the long run. For starters, the immediate consequence of this national policy was the secondary role that Jordan started to perform on many regional and international levels.

With regard to the Arab-Israeli peace process, Jordan started to play second fiddle not only to the other concerned Arab countries but also to the Palestinian party. Suddenly Jordan began to act as if it does not count very much as far as the developing issues in the region and elsewhere in the world are concerned. There is every reason to believe that this intentional low profile is not exactly benign and without much serious risk to the Kingdom

The country received much support, both political and economic, when it assumed an unusually high profile on almost all regional issues. If the policy that the government is now assuming continues to advocate the so-called safer stance, there could be a moment in the future when the Kingdom could render itself increasingly marginal on matters that count most in shaping the future of the Middle East.

"The question that remains is whether this seemingly deliberate and strategic decision to fly low is indeed safe in the long run. For starters, the immediate consequence of this national policy was the secondary role that Jordan started to perform on many regional and international levels."

This ominous assessment as to where Jordan is heading calls for an urgent review lest the country permits its role to atrophy any further. If Jordan continues to believe that it is as central today as it had been in the past to major issues affecting the stability and progress of the region our policy makers will have to start making fresh appraisals for the future course of the country.

As noble as democracy is as a national policy, it cannot serve as the only central objective of the country's domestic and regional policies. There must be a lot more on the mind of our policy makers than the development of democracy. The continued democratic process is obviously the proper setting in which other goals must be pursued. But to put all our eggs in the democratic basket could be damaging even to the democratic process itself. Jordan must assume a more vibrant role in the peace process. It cannot be satisfied with the role of providing an umbrella for the Palestinian side. It is bad enough that Amman's precipitous decision to break all legal and administrative relations with the West Bank has contributed to the false Israeli argument that the occupied territories have been rendered disputed territories. On strictly legal grounds, this Israeli posture lacks credence and legitimacy. Still the decision to go ahead with the plan to give way to the Palestine Liberation Organisation's assumption of control over the fate and future of the West Bank before its liberation has had damaging results as well. Perhaps it is not too late to rectify past judgements that were taken with the best of intentions but nevertheless caused untold difficulties in the process.

Notwithstanding the ramifications of the decision to break relations with the West Bank in haste, there is still a big role for Jordan to play if it still chooses to perform it. This requires a higher profile for the country on all pressing subjects affecting the future of the region. In turn this recommended course would necessitate a more active international participation by Jordan on all levels. The role of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs must in turn be expanded and reactivated to reflect this new sense of confidence. There will come a time when material support to the Kingdom will resume but it cannot be expected to materialise soon as long as democracy and democracy alone is all that we are trying to sell regionally and domestically.

A message of tolerance, friendship

The following is a message to Muslims by the president of the Pontificium Consilium, Francis Cardinal Arinze, on the occasion of Eid Al Fitr.

My Muslim Friends,

IT IS a joy for me, as President of the Pontifical Council for Interreligious Dialogue, to greet you at the end of your Ramadan fast on the occasion of Eid Al Fitr. It is with a feeling of religious solidarity that I send these greetings, because this year our Christian period of special prayer and pe-nance the Season of Lent, has nearly coincided with the month of Ramadan

During this time, we have been standing before God as two communities of believers, offering the homage and worship due to the One Creator, Sustainer, and Final Goal of all human life. We come to God humbly, in full awareness of our sinfulness and unworthiness, and ask God's mercy for our failings. We turn to God to seek his guidance and strength which alone can enable us to carry out the duties pre-

Our duties to God include faith, prayer, repentance and good works. But we remember also that God has given us duties towards our neighbour and generally to human society. We live in an age where Islam and Christianity are found in every continent. In many countries of the world, Christian and Muslims today live side by side, work together in the same offices and factories, study in the same schools, form part of societies which are continually becoming more and more pluralist in na-

What duty do we have towards these societies? What specific contribution are we called to make because of our religious commitments? These are questions upon which our period of fasting offers a special occasion for reflection.

We know that on every continent the pluralistic character of modern life has engendered tensions. Especially when exacerbated by political and economic factors, these tensions have at times in the past led to violence.

it is race, language or social class. We should try to eliminate or at least reduce tensions in society. We must be leaders in educating our own communities to live with others, to accept others with their differences, and yet at the same time to make their distinctive contributions to society. Secondly, we must give an example to ail ndividuals and groups in our own societies that we, Christians and Muslims, are ready to live with others, to respect their dignity and rights, and to carry out our social responsibilities for the good of all.

A challenge which faces us in this increasingly pluralist world is to show that genuine religion, based on belief in God and the desire to do his will, is not a divisive and disruptive element in society, but that it is rather the firmest foundation for love of others, for justice, and for a more-

We must show the world that these beliefs form an enlightened and religious basis for social life. Rabin's refutable claims

IN THE press conference held at the White House on Monday March 15, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, highlighted the following points:

1. Israel did not want war in 1967: Egypt gave a solemn pledge to the U.S. not to start shooting. Israel gave the U.S. a grace period of 14 days, during which to resolve the problem of the Straits of Tirana, but made its onslaught on Egypt after 9 days. only, when the negotiations for the reopening of the Straits of Tirana for Israeli navigation, were still going on, and showed definite signs of success. Does not the attack, when negotiations were going on, indicate that Israel wanted to abort the negotiations, in order not to lose the golden opportunity which presented itself when Egypt, following the Israeli promise to the U.S., cancelled all its military preparations, and went back to normal life? This is the reason why Egypt was taken by surprise. On the other hand, if Israel really wanted peace, why did it not define its borders? Is it not because Israel was cherishing the dream of "Greater Israel", which would be from the Nile to the Euphrates?

2. Israel accepted Security Council Resolution 242, which clearly says "Acquisition of land by force is not permissible." If Israel did in fact accept this resolution, why (a) Did it not comply with the resolution and withdraw from the lands it occupied in 1967, by force? (b) Why did it annex the Arab part of Jerusalem and the Golan Heights, in violation of this resolution? (c) Why did Dr. Gunnar Jarring resign his post as U.N. Mediator? Is it not because he could not convince Israel of the U.N. interpretation of this Security Council resolution (d) Last but not least. Why, after lengthy discussion with the Israeli authorities. was James Baker, the former U.S. Secretary of State, compelled to say loudly "If Israel really wants to live in peace, she should stop dreaming of Greater Israel"? Is it not because he sensed that Israel was still cherishing the hope of expanding at the expense of

3. Israel warned Jordan in 1967 not to enter the war which it waged. This statement might to be correct, but has Mr. Rabin forgotten that Egypt is a sister country to Jordan, and as such, Jordan was bound to help her sister, when attacked? Moreover, Egypt and Jordan were signatories to the Unified Arab Defence Pact, which considered all the Arab frontiers with Israel as one line, and therefore Jordan was duty bound to help Egypt.

In this connection, it may be of interest to remind Mr. Rabin, that in September, 1939, Great Britain and France did the same that in september, 1959, Great Britain and France old the same thing and rushed to help Poland when it was invaded by the German armies, out of sense of duty towards Poland, although they did not have a unified defence pact with her, nor is she a sister to any one of them. Why was this action considered legitimate, and that of Jordan was not? Or did Mr. Rabin want Jordan to dishonour its commitments towards the sister countries, as Israel did with the U.S. when it attacked Egypt nine days after it gave the U.S. government a grace period of 14 days?

Is it not ironic that the responsible officials in Israel are stilltrying to cheat the world with the same lies that they were telling the U.S. officials in 1967. These lies led Mr. Dean Rusk, the then U.S. Secretary of State, to scream out of exasperation in the face of Mr. Abba Eban, the then Israeli Minister of Foreign Affairs, "When are you going to stop telling us lies, and to force us to tell lies to our Arab friends, which would ultimately end up in us losing our credibility with them"?

colleagues who used their positions to secure jobs for friends and relatives.

One deputy, a former minister, who was not given the floor because the House decided to postpone the discussion of the committees findings, described the report as "meak," lacking in substance and concentrating on minor violations.

The government did not respond to the accusations.

"Unfairness in appointments, the bureaucratic corruption that accompanies it and the lack of seriousness of the administrative reform programmes make the legislative authorities responsible for putting an end to (these practices)," the committee said.

In response to claims made earlier by some deputies that the digging into public-sector appointments was motivated by personal interests to settle old scores, the panel urged lawmakers to use its findings to promote public interest.

"The findings of the committee are not aimed at settling old scores but are meant as a lesson... (and aimed at) overcoming this ordeal and promoting public interest," the committee said.

The committee proposed that all public-sector hiring be chan-nelled through the Civil Service Commission and an account of all illegal appointments be included in the Audi Bureau's annual report to the House.

"This will prevent (officials) from using their offices for personal gains, favouring one member of society to others," the committee said.

Failure to do so, it said, will inevitably cause some concerned agencies, mainly the Lower House of Parliament, its credibil-

In its session Sunday, the House also endorsed a draft law on teachers' union even though the Supreme Council for the Interpretation of the Constitution has yet to rule on the constitutionality of the draft legislation.

The constitutionality of the draft law is being contested on the grounds that it will unionise government employees in violation of the Constitution.

The House cleared the draft law after amending it to give teachers the right to hold strikes and defeating a bill by the Islamists to restrict investment of its assets to ventures that correspond with Islamic Sharia.

9 sentenced to death in Algeria

ALGIERS (Agencies) - Algeria's anti-terrorist court, set up to combat Muslim fundamentalist violence, has sentenced nine men to death for the attempted murder of a policeman, the official news agency APS reported.

The sentences were part of a trial of 51 suspected members of an armed group charged with attacking a military barracks and killing an undisclosed number of people including a policeman.

Two people were sentenced to 15 years in prison. Several others were given jail terms of five to 10 years and seven were acquitted during proceedings that lasted until early Sunday morning.

Three of those given the death penalty were sentenced in absentia, as were eight others. It was not clear whether they were among those receiving jail terms or acquitted.

All were being tried in connection with an attack on a barracks in Blida, 50 kilometres south of Algiers, where there is also a military prison bolding the country's too Muslim fundamentalist

They were also charged with murder, possession of weapons and explosives, theft, associating with criminals and selling alcoholic drinks.

A total of 62 death sentences have been passed in Algeria since a state of emergency was decreed to combat violence acts by alleged fundamentalist groups. The special court condemned presented, would go ahead as planned. But Mr. Clinton said Mr. Yeltsin must sustain his commitment to democracy if he is to keep the support of the U.S. Both the 250-member Supreme Soviet and its parent body, the 1,033-member Congress of People's Deputies, have opposed Mr. Yeltsin's economic reforms and commissioner. "Our feeling is that President Yeltsin at present is the only leading figure that can put this process through," he said. Many suggested that Mr. Yeltsin has the moral high ground in the duel, with his mandate as Russia's first democratically-elected leader. In Brussels, NATO refused to comment on Mr. Yeltsin's decision, but alliance sources said the crisis would be discussed at a meeting of ambassadors Monday. Canada's Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, who will host Mr. Yeltsin's summit with Mr. Clinton, expressed his support for the decision to let Russia's people choose their own future. He was reassured Mr. Yeltsin intended to safeguard civil liberties and maintain continuity in Russia's foreign policy, he said.

France, renewing a call for an emergency summit of the Group of Seven top industrial nations to review aid to Russia, said Mr. Yeltsin's move fell within the framework of democratic reform.

Germany saw Mr. Yeltsin's action as a chance to preserve economic and political reforms, government spokesman Dieter Vogel Britain, Italy, the Netherlands, Austria and Denmark also pledged their support, but Italy added a note of caution.

"The government hopes that the decisions taken by President Yeltsin do not lead to an increase in the serious institutional and political difficulties which Russia faces," Italy's foreign ministry said in a statement.

Crisis awaits Serb-held region of Croatia

One man's tale

of horror

By Paul Holmes Reuter

BELI MANASTIR, CROATIA - The plains that stretch into the distance around this Serb-held town in eastern Croatia have been ploughed to a rich brown, ready for planting.

But the men who should be working the soil are either carrying guns on a front line facing Croatian troops or have fled. An undeclared economic embargo is starving the area of imported fertiliser, seeds and fuel. Now, United Nations officials say, a region where crops have grown in abundance for centuries could soon be in need of international relief supplies.

"If they are not able to cultivate the land there will be a very serious problem by the autumn, Cedric Thornberry, the civil affairs director of the U.N. Protection Force (UNPROFOR) in former Yugoslavia, said recently.

The Baranja region of eastern Croatia, which sweeps down to the River Danube and the border with Hungary, was seized by ethnic Serbs in mid-1991 in the war that erupted when Croatia broke away from former Yugos-

Patroiled for the past year by Belgian peacekeeping troops, it is in one of four U.N.-protectedzones which cover the 30 per cent of Croatia where minority Serbs have declared their own "Republic of Serb Krajina."

U.N. military and civilian officials say ethnic tension has risen in Baranja since Croatia's army launched an offensive to reconquer strategic ground from the Serbs in the mountainous far west of Croatia.

Colonel Wilfried Heyvaert, commander of the Belgian U.N. battalion, said six people had been murdered in Serb extremist attacks on members of Barania's dwindling Croat community since the offensive began on January

The dead include a Croat couple in their 60s killed in their home at night in Beli Manastir, Baranja's main town.

It has also kept the Serbs from working on the land, worsening the economic crisis in the region, Mr. Heyvaert said.

His troops, sent into Croatia as part of a U.N. mission that has failed to achieve its aim of disarming Serb militias, are now spending more and more time helping misery-hit Serbs and non-

Serbs to get by.
"We know of a family with nine children, an income of about 10 marks (6) a month and the husband at the front," Mr. Heyvaert said. "We are helping a lot of people here with food.

Mansell makes history with debut Indycar win

SURFERS PARADISE, Australia (R) - World motor racing champion Nigel Mansell stormed to a remarkable victory in his debut

Indycar Grand Prix Sunday.

The British driver set a blistering pace during the 65-lap race through the streets of this sub-tropical holiday resort to cross the line 5.11 seconds ahead of Brazilian veteran Emerson Fittipaldi. Mansell, on the pole after setting a track record during the qualifying session, is only the second Indycar "rookie" to win his first

The first to achieve that accolade in 1966 was the late great of motor racing Graham Hill, whom Mansell has said is his idol.

Mansell, who had to make three pit stops during the one hour 52 minute race, said he was close to running out of fuel at the finish. It was the reigning Formula One title holder's first victory on

"I can't tell you how happy I am," the 39-year-old Mansell said. Indycar officials said Mansell completed the course in a race record time of one hour 52 minutes 2.886 seconds. However, Mansell's first outinmg in the American motor sport series with the Paul Newman-Carl Haas team was not error free. He breached a race rule, got a puncture, shaved a barrier wall and suffered severe cramps in his right foot.

He was forced to make his lap of honour in a course emergency vehicle when his car's fuel dried up.

Despite qualifying on pole position, Mansell quickly fell back to fourth place because the pace car ahead failed to accelerate and Fittipaldi took the lead with young American rising star Robby

"I just went backwards at the start," said Mansell, who dominated the 1992 Formula One season with nine wins.

But the fearless Briton pushed his way back through the field and the race turned into a dogfight between Mansell and Fittipaldi, who won it here last year.

"Halfway through I was driving as hard as I knew," said Mansell, who led the final 21 laps. I can't remember the last time I enjoyed Fittipaldi, who has one Indy series championship and two Formula One titles to his credit, said Mansell drove a beautiful race.

MOSCOW (R) — President Boris Yeltsin promised sweeping changes to unblock his economic reform programme when he announced that he was assuming 'special rule" in Russia before an April vote on a new government

Mr. Yeltsin, stepping into the unknown with his latest move in a power struggle against the conservative legislature, pledged that reform would move swiftly now that he had written a death warrant for the Congress of People's Deputies.

The battle for control of Russia has paralysed normal government as each side countermands the other's instructions, accusing its rivals of breaking the constitution and the law.

Mr. Yeltsin said in his television address Saturday that he had ordered Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin to list priority economic measures within two days. Rapid land privatisation would be top of the reform list, he said.

number is expected to soar after the legislature passes a law allowing inefficient state firms to go

He said tens of millions of people, whose deposits in savings banks have been made worthless by inflation, would receive compensation in the non-inflationary form of strares in enterprises, land, and other state property.

He called for new controls on cronyism in local government, warning officials against giving lucrative contracts to favoured firms, and he urged closer coordination between regions of the far-flung federal state.

Then we will have a real chance to give more help to pen-sioners, families with many children, single mothers, to all those who now live in poverty and need support," he said.

"It will be difficult to achieve the $8 billion export target because of the cotton crisis." said an official of the government's Export Promotion Bureau (EPB).

Although the trade deficit in the first eight months of the fiscal year that ends in June narrowed to $1.79 billion — from $1.99 billion in the year-ago period — ligher production costs f exports lagged behind target, textiles and garments. officials said.

Exports rose 10 per cent to $4.49 billion in the July-February period, from $4.08 billion in the year-ago period and imports jumped to $6.29 billion from $6.08 billion, Federal Bureau of Bureau of Statistics.

"We are trying hard to raise exports," said EPB Chairman Abdul Aziz Haji Yaqoob. He said Pakistan had revised its ambitious goal but declined to give details. Exports usually rise in the fourth quarter, he added. Exports have slumped, mainly because of a shortfall of 170-kilogramme bales of cotton this crop year compared with 1991/ 92. Cotton and cotton-based products account for more than 60 per cent of total exports.

The All Pakistan Textile Mills Association (APTMA) demanded recently that Pakistan devalue its rupee to 30 to the dollar — from the current 26.65 — to make Pakistan more competitive after neighbouring India made its rupee fully convertible. Cotton ginners say production fell to 8.76 million bales to March 1, compared with 11.78 million a year ago. The fall sent domestic cotton prices soaring and resulted in Higher production costs for yarn.

Iran ushering in economic reforms in new year

NICOSIA (R) — Iran has begun a new year in which major reforms to shake up an inefficient, 1,650 three weeks ago. war-ravaged and state-dominated up and people out of work.

Most officials and critics agree that immediate hardships like higher inflation and job losses would result from the measures, centred around currency reforms which amount to a sharp devaluation of the rival for many sectors. But President Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, in his last Friday prayer sermon of the old year, said: "If we don't cure this illness, our nation will never reach economic independence." The new Iranian year 1372 started Satur-

Íran's economy is basically about the state spending the oil revenue — envisaged at $17 billion this year, just above last year's projection — to feed its 60 million people and support a blo-ated civil service and largely inefficient industries.

During the devastating 1980-88 war with Iraq, the Iranian gov-ernment kept the riyal's official exchange rate at about 70 per dollar to prevent the importdependent state industries from closing down and to keep down prices of basic imports like food.

But the rival's value on the open market, reflecting the decline of the economy under the impact of the war and turmoil of the 1979 Islamic revolution, slid to about 1,400 per dollar. The wide gap complicated Iran's economic problems.

"A nation which wants to sell its... main (oil) revenue at onetwentieth of its value can obviously never be reformed," Mr. Rafsanjani said. "This could not get us anywhere. It was clear that one day the economy would kneel down.'

Under this year's budget law the government would abolish the official rate except for defence expenditures and imports of basic foods, fuels and medicine totalling $3.8 billion.

Another rate of 600 rival per dollar for some imports would also be scrapped, leaving only the floating rate last set by the central bank at 1,542 riyals per dollar

While few oppose the reforms economy are likely to put prices in principle, industrialists have complained that many companies simply do not have the money to pay for imported machinery and materials at new prices.

Officials say industries made lazy by the cheap dollars fed them for years now need a prod to shape up and catch up with inter-national standards of efficiency.

Mohammad Hadi Nejad-Hosseinian said the reforms would put an end to "subsidydriven managers and those who thrived on the difference in the exchange rates."

U.S. drops individual aid packs in Bosnia to prevent fighting for food

SARAJEVO (R) - U.S. planes flew aid to a stranded Bosnian town early Sunday, scattering in-dividual packets rather than bundles to try to prevent starving inhabitants from killing each other in the fight for food.

A. U.N. spokesman in Sarajevo said the food was dropped on the Muslim town of Srebrenica, cut off by the Serbs for 11 months. People there are reported to be close to starvation. He said the new method sought to defuse the dangerous situation on the ground as people swarmed over airdropped food pallets and fought each other for the con-

U.N. officials in the town reported that several people were killed scrambling for the food, or by cartons falling on them.
The U.S. European Command

in Frankfurt said test drops had shown that the new rations, falling slowly because of air pockets in the packaging, would not kill people on the ground and could be dropped directly over towns rather than nearby.

The U.N. succeeded Friday in getting a convoy of food and medicine to Srebrenica in eastern Bosnia, and it evacuated 700 inhabitants including some 100 wounded to the Muslim stronghold of Tuzla.

However, a second aid convoy for Srebrenica was blocked on the Serbian-Bosnia border after local

U.N. officials said this appeared to be another delaying tactic to press Serb demands for the evacuation of Serbs from Tuzla, in northern Bosnia.

A spokeswoman for the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) said they could not accept any linkage between the supply of aid to besieged settlements and the evacuation of Serbs from Muslim

"Our priority at present is to get another aid convoy to Srebre-nica," spokeswoman Lyndall nica," spo Sachs said.

She said the question of evacuating Serbs from Tuzla was being discussed separately.

"If people are willing to go, if there is no force used, and it's done in an orderly fashion, we are all for it," she said.

She said there was no accurate figure of the number of Serbs in Tuzla. Belgrade-based Tanjug News Agency has reported there are 18,000 Serbs in the town of whom 4,000 wanted to leave.

IRA causes carnage after recent U.K. police successes

LONDON (R) - Two IRA bombs which caused carnage in a crowded shopping mall in north-ern England Saturday were areprisal attack for police successes against the guerrillas, security sources said. They said the Irish Republic Army, fighting to oust Britain from northern Ireland, was on the ropes after a spate of arrests and police seizures of explosives and guns.

Security forces familiar with IRA strategy had braced for a calculated "spectacular" explosion intended to win publicity and to show that IRA fighters were still a force to be reckoned with. This was a deliberate attempt to murder people simply in order to shock," Home Secretary Kenneth Clarke said after the twin blasts killed a four-year-old boy and injured 56 people in the town of Warrington. "This is a statement of defiance to say the arrests have made absolutely no difference to them." said former Deputy Police Chief Constable John Stal-

The IRA has generally avoided the widespread bloodshed caused by its 1970s bombings on the British mainland, preferring economic, military and government targets and issuing warnings to clear the area.

Saturday's attack on a "soft target" was the most devastating since a massive bomb killed three people and injured 80 last April in London's city financial district.

Chief Stalker said it was meant to show that Warrington, where three men were arrested after a police officer was wounded and a gasworks was bombed on Feb. 26, was still vulnerable.

could resume

dialogue soon — Seoul

Koreas

SEOUL (R) — Cold war foes North and South Korea could renew talks next month on a nuclear dispute, a senior Seoul official said Sunday.

Talks between the two Koreas on proposed mutual nuclear inspections broke down in January when the North protested against Seoul's plan to hold military exercises with Washington.

"Inter-Korean dialogue will pick up swiftly at the end of the North Korea's major political schedules such as the Supreme People's Assembly (parliament) session opening on April 7 and North Korean leader Kim's II-Sung's birthday celebration on April 5." Gong Ro-Myung, Seoul's chief negotiator in talks with the North on nuclear issues.

said in a television interview. "The government keeps in mind thhe option of resuming the joint (South-North) Nuclear Control Committee at a proper time to resolve the North's nuclear problem." Mr. Gong told the Korea Broadcasting System. Pyongyang fuelled tensions this month when it said it was pulling out of a global treaty on nuclear proliferation rather than allow inspection of military sites.

South Korea and its Western allies have been trying to pursuade the Communist North Korea's hardline leadership to reconsider.

Mr. Gong said he believed the North's decision to reject the nuclear non-proliferation treaty (NPT) was designed to "maxmimise its political negotiating pow-Referring to North Korea's de-games as a rehearsal for an invasion. Seoul and Washington say they are purely defensive.

This year's Team Spirit war games, involving more than 120,000 troops from South Korea and the United States, formally ended last Thursday.

The Vienna-based International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), which suspects North Korea is on the brink of producing a nuclear weapon, has given Pyongyang until the end of the month to allow its inspectors to check two sites for uranium.

If it misses the deadline, the hard-pressed Communist country could face international economic sauctions.

Mr. Gong said China has been exoperating with the IAEA to make the divided Korean peninsula nuclear-free.

'The North will be struck hard and may wither to death if the U.N. Security Council imposes economic structures with China's cooperation," Mr. Gong said, China, which sent troops to help North Korea during the 1950-53 Koreans War, is Pyongyang's last remaining Communist ally and has a veto power in the Security Council.

South Korean officials have said China was likely to play a key mediating role in defusing tension between Pyongyang's leadership and the United States.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Angolan oil town intact — eyewitness

LUANDA (R) — Angola's UNITA rebels said the northern Angolan oil town of Soyo was in flames but a Reuter correspondent who flew over the town said it was not burning. Correspondent Robert Powell said Sovo's oil installations were intact and he did not see flames when he flew over the town. The UNITA radio station earlier said Soyo was in flames due to bombing by government forces and shelling by UNITA rebels. The town and its outskirts were under heavy shelling, said the National Union for the Total Independence (UNITA) radio, monitored by the British Broadcasting Corporation. "No oil will flow from Sovo to finance the war because everything is in flames as a result of heavy bombing by the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA)'s air force and navy, as well as shelling by UNITA's heavy artillery," the radio said.

Rome prelate in corruption probe

ROME (R) — Italy's corruption scandal touched the Roman Catholic Church for the first time when a prelate and senior charity worker admitted publicly Saturday that he was under inquiry. Monsignor Luigi Di Liegro, head of the Rome Diocesan Office of the Caritas charity organisation, said he faced a probe over accusations of attempting to defraud the Rome municipality and ill-treatment of immigrants. A notification of investigation was issued last December but had not previously been made public. Mr. Di Liegro himself announced he faced the inquiry. The prelate said the probe centred on allegation he had us contacts in Rome's city hall to secure a contract for a Catholic foundation to temporarily house Somali immigrants in a Rome hotel. He said the ill-treatment allegations arose after the lights and water were cut while the refugees were in the hotel.

6 explosions rocks Philippine volcano

LEGAZPI, Philippines (R) - Mayon Volcano in the Philippines exploded six times Sunday, blasting superhot ash columns towering six-and-a-half kilometres into the air, as lava and molten rock swent down the mountain. Relief officials urged thousands of people who trickled back into villages at the foot of Mayon to flee for their lives and another wave of refugees was expected to jam into evacuation centres where more than 45,000 people are now living. No casualties have been reported since Mayon. near Legazpi city 330 kilometres southeast of Manila, erupted again Saturday. More than 70 people died in a series of eruptions last month from the 2,421-metre (7,940-foot) mountain.

U.S. envoy leaves Haiti

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (R) — A U.S. State Department envoy left Haiti after pledging that the Clinton administration would try to help resolve Haiti's 18-month-old political and economic crisis as soon as possible. Envoy Lawrence Pezzullo refused to comment on his meetings with leaders of Haitt's army and its military backed government. "Our conversations have to remain in the strictest confidence... it serves everybody's purpose to do so," Mr. Pezzullo told reporters before departing after a two-day visit to the impoverished Caribbean nation. Mr. Pezzullo, a former ambassador to Nicaragua, said that no timetable had been set for the restoration of democracy in Haiti, but added that he was "hopeful" that progress would soon be made. Mr. Pezzullo was accompanied to Haiti by Charles Redman, a former State Department spokesman who was named special charge d'affaires to Haiti last week.

Snowstorms kill 15 in China

PEKING (AP) - Fifteen people in remote northwestern China have died in storms that have dumped snow on the third of Oinghai province in the past two and a half months, an official report said Sunday. More than 2,000 people have been injured and 476,000 heads of livestock have perished in nine heavy snowfalls in the pastoral area, the Xinhua News Agency reported. In most of the affected area, temperature remained at minus 30 degrees Celsius (minus 22 degrees Fahrenheit), threatening 120,000 residents and seven million heads of livestock. Relief teams were trying to bring grain, feed and gasoline to the stricken areas, but were being hampered by the snow, poor transportation and scattered population. The Xinhua report said 14 people died from flu, dysentery and pneumonia, and a nine year old boy froze to death when he tried to round up livestock in the snow.

Bombay leader yows crackdown

BOMBAY (R) - The chief minister of India's western state of Maharashtra has vowed to crack down ruthlessly on criminal gangs believed to be responsible for bomb attacks in Bombay. "I will see that they are mercilessly and ruthlessly dealt with, the process has already started," Sharad Pawar said in an interview published Sunday. He said that while local groups had planted the bombs, India still has to track down those outside the country who financed the operation and provided plastic explosives normally unavailable in India. The former defence minister took on administration of the Indian state after Hindu-Muslim riots in December and January. Pawar told India's Sunday Observer newspaper that the bombings which killed 250 people wounded 1,200 wounded on March 12 were designed to exploit religious riots in India and sabotage the economy. "... Some forces were eager to send a message outside India that Bombay is burning, Bombay is insecure, Bombay, the financial capital, is not in good shape, so why should anyone invest in India...." he was quoted as

Ukrainian minister to explain START delay

KIEV (R) — Foreign Minister Anatoly Zlenko goes to Washington this week to explain to the new U.S. administration why Ukraine has persistently delayed ratification of a nuclear disarmament accord.

Mr. Zlenko is certain to face tough questioning about why Ukraine's parliament has launched into lengthy hearings on the START-1 treaty nearly three years after it first said the country would become non-nuclear.

There is no indication when a ratification debate will take place. A growing number of deputies appear oncosed to approving START and joining the 1968 non-proliferation treaty (NPT).

"At the moment everything is being done to carry out our declared policy," Mr. Zlenko told a weekend news conference. "We are working on trying to keep a minimum the negative consequences of becoming a non-nuclear Ukraine's leaders initially promised START-I, signed in 1991, would be ratified by the end of last year. The United States has expressed concern at the delay, particularly as ratification is needed in order to proceed with the more amibitious START-2 treaty concluded with Russia in President Leonid Kravchuk and government ministers have demanded that other nuclear states provide Ukraine with security guarantees for giving up the 176 strategic missiles of the former Soviet arsenal still on its territory.

Kidnappers free last hostages held at embassy in Costa Rica

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (R) -Kidnappers who stormed the Nicaraguan embassy freed the last of their 25 hostages unharmed early Sunday in return for a ransom and safe passage.

The remaining 10 hostages were released after the kidnappers and Nicaraguan government negotiators agreed on an unspecified ransom and safe passage out of Costa Rica, said Costa Rican Minister of Public Security Luis Fishman.

"We are extremely satisfied that all of the hostages were liberated without bloodshed," Mr. Fishman said after the release at 1 a.m. (2 a.m. est).

The heavily armed kidnappers seized the embassy in downtown San Jose on March 8, making demands which included the removal of Nicaraguan Defence Minister Humberto Ortega.

The gunmen's leader, Jose Manuel Urbina Lara, was granted political asylum in the Interior Minister Alfredo Men-Dominican Republic, said Alfonso Arias, Dominican Republic Ambassador to Costa Rica.

Three other unidentified gunmen will be flown by Costa Rican government helicopter to an unnamed point inside Nicaraguan territory later Sunday, an official

The gunmen had remained masked throughout the siege, according to hostages released

The kidnappers will remain in the embassy under the protection of the Costa Rican government until Sunday afternoon when they will be taken to their respective destinations, Mr. Fishman said. Among the hostages held through the 12-day ordeal was Nicaraguan Ambassador Alfonso Robeio. The full terms of the agreement to end the kidnapping were not immediately known. Nicaraguan dieta said throughout the siege that the kidnapper's political demands, including the removal of Mr. Ortega, were not negotiable.

Their leader, Jose Manuel Urbina Lara, is believed to be a former member of the contra rebels who fought against the leftist Sandinista government during Nicaragua's eight-year civil war. Mr. Urbina, in one of many communiques issued during the crisis, said the aim of the raid was partly to pressure Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro to rid the government of leftist Sandinistas. Mrs. Chamorro defeated the Sandinistas in 1990 elections, but has left many in key government posts.

He also has demanded a $6 million ransom, but said most of it would be given to the Catholic Church in Nicaragua.

The hostages released earlier said they have been well-treated.

Thai technology minister relies on

BANGKOK (R) — Thailand's Minister of Science and Technology says he is protected from danger by the magnetic field in an amulet that can even deflect bullets, the Sunday Bangkok Post reported. Minister of Science, Technology and the Environment Phisan Moonlasartsathorn told reporters bullets missed his head by just one centimetre (half an inch) when he was shot at years ago. "The magnetic field deflected the bullets and made the shots harmless," said Mr. Phisan. The Post quoted Mr. Phisan, who is also senior adviser to the Buddha image club of Thailand, as saying the amulet had an "invisi-ble power", which he called "natural science". Animal lovers strip 4 % to save fur

PARIS (R) — Five animal lovers paraded naked through a Paris fur fair Saturday to proclaim the right of animals to keep their skins on. The group's spokesman, American Dan Matthews, said, the three men and two women wielded a "we'd rather be naked than wear fur" banner through cases and into the fair an hour before police moved in. The. group of French and U.S. activists were bundled naked into a police van, charged with indecent exposure and released after four hours. "Police were quite nice and supportive," said Mr. Matthews, 28. He said his Washingtonbased People For Ethical Treatment of animals group had staged similar protests in the United States, Japan and Canada but had never been arrested before. They planned to take their protest to a fur fair in Milan Wednesday, he

Fergie divorce settlement put at £2 million

LONDON (R) - Prince), Andrew's estranged wife the Duchess of York stands to collect almost £2 million ($2.97 million) for herself and her children if she and the duke divorce, the Mail On Sunday newspaper said, There was no-one available at Buckingham Palace to comment on the claims in the Mail On Sunday that the divorce settlement between Queen Elizabeth's second son and the duchess, known as "Fergie" after her maiden name Ferguson, had been finalised. Under its terms. according to the paper, the duchess would receive a £500,000 ($743,300) personal settlement from the royal family. A further £1.4 million ($2.08 million) would be put into a trust for the couple's two daughters. Princesses Beatrice and Eugenie, including £600,000 ($891,900) to buy a house which they would own. The duke and duchess announced they were separating in March last year but there has been no official confirmation that they are to divorce. According to the paper, the duchess, who was said to have been hoping for £4 million ($5.95 million) for herself as well as money for her daughters, was "stunned" by the modest size of the settlement.

Pakistan bans tight Western dress in Pashtu films

ISLAMABAD (R) - Pakistan's Central Board of Film Censors Saturday banned actresses in Pashtu language films from wearing figure-hugging Western dress. "Skin-tight" Western dress, particularly jeans and skirts, is objectionable and does not conform with Pashtun culture, the board said in a letter to makers of films in Pashtu, the language of North West Frontier Province. "It is high time that no leniency be shown toward such dress," the board said, adding that, unless filmmakers obeyed its ruling. scenes from their films would be cut from June 1. Pashtu is not understood in much of the rest of Islamic Pakistan, but Pashtu films featuring risque scenes with heroines in tight or revealing clothes are popular. ..
